An Afternoon with Dwight

A man's home is his castle. Dwight Holland's castle holds beautiful objects that inspire and enrich his life. Pottery, sculptures, paintings and antiques are treasures filling his house. From the moment you enter Dwight's castle you are surrounded by beauty. It is an authentic beauty, not synthesized and assembled by a design team, but the product of a singular vision. Visitors are completely immersed in his world.

While you follow him into the heart of his castle (the kitchen; originally built in 1852) his art will tell you so much about him that when you get into the kitchen he seems like an old friend and you are merely continuing a conversation you have been having for years.

Take a tour through Dwight's castle and he will introduce himself to you through his art.
